Wearing the right clothing for the job is crucial. This means wearing clothing that is appropriate for the task at hand. For example, if you are working with chemicals, you should wear a chemical-resistant suit. If you are working at heights, you should wear a safety harness. Wearing the wrong clothing can lead to accidents, injuries, and even fatalities.

Keeping your clothes clean is also important. Dirty clothes can cause a fire or dermatitis risk, which can be hazardous. Avoid loose ends, as they can get caught in machinery, causing injury or death. Finger rings are also dangerous near moving machinery, as they can get caught and cause severe injury.

If protective clothing is provided, it should be worn at all times. This may include items such as safety helmets, safety shoes, safety glasses, and gloves. Safety helmets can protect your head from falling objects, while safety shoes can protect your toes from being crushed. Safety glasses can protect your eyes from flying debris, and gloves can protect your hands from cuts, burns, and other injuries.

It is also important to remember that danger can strike upwards. Be sure that your boots or shoes have strong soles to protect your feet from sharp objects and debris.

If your clothing becomes contaminated, it is important to remove it immediately and wash it. Remember that cotton burns more easily than wool, so choose clothing that is less flammable when possible. Even for short jobs, it is imperative to always wear PPE where provided.

Conclusion:

Summarise the main points covered in the talk, remind everyone of their responsibility to wear PPE Provided and to keep it clean and ready for next use and replace when damaged.

Attendance Register:

Pass around the attendance register, asking everyone to fill in their details and sign to confirm attendance.
